Budget passes quietly

By WENDY HANSCOM

Shortly after 1 o'clock Tuesday morning, the SAD44 Board of Directors approved the $6,993,409 FY '95 district budget.

The vote was preceded by a four-hour executive session regarding a student discipline problem.

Greenwood Selectman Marie Bartlett's call for district selectmen to attend the meeting went unanswered. Bartlett and Bethel Budget Committee member Pat Dooen made brief statements before the executive session, and then went home.

No other SAD44 selectman turned out for the meeting.

There was also no discussion of the budget by School Board members prior to the vote, but the vote was not unanimous. The weighted vote was 473 to 256.

Voting against the budget were Bethel director Merton Brown, Greenwood directors Susan Gordon and Ray Harrington, Newry director Alison Aloisio and Woodstock director Margaret Hand.

Bethel director Jane Rolfe was out of the room when the budget vote was taken, but said later she would have voted against it.

Board members absent Monday evening were Bethel directors Fran Tyler and Edleen Winslow and Andover director John Percival.

A public hearing on the district budget is scheduled for May 16 at 7 p.m. in the Telstar High School auditorium.

The district-wide budget meeting is set for May 25 at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Stanley Howe

Stan Howe's first book looks at Maine Grange

By WENDY HANSCOM

"I don't think any other organization ever had as much impact in Maine as the Grange did," said Stanley Howe, a Granger himself and also the executive director of the Bethel Historical Society.

Howe is currently putting the finishing touches on a book about the Grange, an organization, he said, which "had a tremendous impact in the lives of farmers in Maine for a long time."

Howe was asked by the State Grange to author the book, which traces the development of the Grange in Maine, its importance to rural farm life and its political clout.

The Grange was organized in Washington, D.C. in 1867. It strived to provide farmers with education on agriculture issues as well as giving isolated communities a place to socialize.

The first Grange in Maine was in the Bangor area, Howe said. Farmers' Clubs were a forerunner to the Grange, and Bethel had the first Maine Farmers' Club in 1853, which was established by Gould Academy founder Nathaniel T. Truc. Once Grange halls were built, Farmers' Clubs often dissolved and members joined the Grange.

"It grew rapidly," Howe said, "by 1876 or '77 there were several thousand Grangers in Maine and several Granges had 50 to 100 members."

"The importance of the Grange is in the light it brought to Maine people on these rural, isolated farms," Howe said. "But the Grange was quite radical in the 1870s because for the first time it gave women equal membership rights with men."

Part of the Grange's mission was to educate farmers on the "new" scientific methods of agriculture. Talks were held on what types of plants grew best in this climate, how to prepare manure so it would be the most effective, how to organize a more efficient barn, how to establish co-op buying and more.

Grangers also had several political interests including better rural schools, regulations that would standardize the fertilizer industry, and affordable insurance.

Many farmers were angry with bankers and insurance companies, which they thought had too much power. Nationally, the Grange set up its own insurance company to

Tim LaVallee back at Gould to head up joint alpine program with Sunday River

Former U.S. Ski Team Technical Director Tim LaVallee has been appointed Program Director of the Gould Academy Alpine Program. The Academy has also hired Sunday River Head Coach Kurt Simard.

The two men, along with current Gould alpine coach Uel Gardner, will oversee the recently announced Gould/Sunday River alpine program. The final structure of the joint program is still being worked out, according to Gould spokesman Kirk Siegel.

LaVallee was Gould athletic director and head alpine coach from 1980 to 1984. He then served on the U.S. Ski Team coaching staff, and later directed NCAA Division I ski programs at the University of Colorado, and, since 1990, at Bates College. According to Gould Headmaster William P. Cough III, "Taking Gould Skiing to the level of a top program like Burke Mountain Academy, without sacrificing academics, can only succeed if led by a person equally capable of working with the academic faculty and with coaches and elite and developing skiers."

Simard is a former University of New Hampshire ski team captain. He will join the existing Gould staff, including Head Coach Uel Gardner, who has worked with the U.S. Women's A Team both as a ski technician and as an associate coach for Downhill and Super G. School officials said that a list of coaches with World Cup and Olympic credentials was considered for the new post, but none had the proven experience coaching athletes

Rabies closes in But simple precautions can lessen the danger to pets and humans

By WENDY HANSCOM

There have been only two verified cases of rabies in Maine in the past two years, but nonetheless a rabies epizootic (animal epidemic) appears to be zeroing in on western Maine.

Rabies is rapidly moving through New England's raccoon population, and red fox with the disease have been reported in Quebec and in the nearby Whitefield/Lancaster region of New Hampshire.

So far, the current rabies outbreak has not been documented in Maine, but wildlife and public health officials are preparing for the worst case scenario.

Game wardens are being vaccinated against the disease, public safety officials are preparing a handbook on how to handle rabies-related reports and veterinarians are recommending that all pets -- especially cats -- get vaccinated.

State officials have been watching rabies move toward Maine for the past four years, according to state wildlife biologist Henry Hilton.

The state is not doing "surveillance" testing, testing of suspicious animals, so it is difficult to tell if the disease is in Maine yet.

"There's not enough money or people to test every animal that's suspect," said state veterinarian Chip Ridky. "Only animals that have direct contact with domestic animals or people will be tested."

Raccoon rabies has been moving up the East Coast from the south for the past few years and is now in New Hampshire and possibly Maine, Hilton said.

"They can spread the disease fairly quickly," Hilton said. "It's not being transmitted in the usual fashion, raccoons are getting on trucks coming from the south, so people help carry it through."

New Hampshire wildlife officials have also confirmed cases of red fox rabies.

Bats are the other well known carrier of the disease, Hilton said. But they weigh only about an ounce, carry little of the virus and usually die quickly from the disease, he said. They present only a minor threat to humans and wildlife, he said.

Any warm blooded animal, including humans, can contract rabies. The virus destroys the nerve cells in part of the brain, and untreated is almost always fatal. It can be carried in the salivary glands of the host for long periods of time. Symptoms of the disease generally develop from ten days to seven months after exposure.

New England states are taking various measures aimed at combating the disease.

Spring burning season

Hold your fire till after five

By WENDY HANSCOM

With many volunteer firemen busy at their day jobs from 9 to 5, local fire officials are asking homeowners not to burn yard waste or other materials on weekdays until after 5 p.m.

All homeowners must have a permit to burn or face a fine, according to officials from Northern Oxford Mutual Aid. (NOMA is a mutual aid group of SAD44 fire departments including: Bethel, Newry, Gilead, Andover, Woodstock and Greenwood.)

But this year, the state Forest Service is also recommending that no permits be issued for weekday burning until after 5 p.m.

The reason for the restriction, according to NOMA member Virgil "Tink" Konkright, Newry's Fire Chief, is that volunteer fire department manpower is limited during weekday working hours.

"If a burn gets away during the workday, there might not be enough people to respond," Konkright said.

Local fire officials issue burn permits when conditions allow. Burning is recommended only when wind speeds are one to ten miles per hour and the woods are fairly damp.

If homeowners burn without a permit, they can face fines up to $100, Konkright said. Law officers and forest service officials can cite anyone burning without a permit.

Local firefighters can ask homeowners to extinguish non-permitted blazes, or notify the proper law officials, Konkright said.

If a burn gets away, homeowners -- with or without a permit -- are responsible for up to $10,000 in firefighting costs and any damages caused to other property.

Other safety guidelines include having one adult present for a backyard incinerator (barrel) burn, and two adults for grass and brush burns. A garden hose, or buckets of water and hand tools such as brooms, shovels, rakes and other tools to suffocate a fire should also be on hand.

Fire officials to contact for burning permits are: Andover -- Ken Dixon and Bob Hutchins; Bethel -- Jim Young, David Brown and Lonnie Davis; Greenwood -- Hugh Swan and Ray Seames; Gilead -- Harry Taylor; Newry -- in the Sunday River Valley, Alan Fleet and in the Bear River Valley, Brad Wight and Tink Konkright, and Woodstock -- Bill Seames, Ken Koskela and Percy Monk.

with high academic goals in institutions of higher learning. LaVallee said he is "excited about the program's opportunity for continuity, right from the grass roots through the time that skiers are ready for collegiate racing."

He said that this continuity is provided by the possibility of a Gould experience following from a youngster's participation in River Runners (Sunday River's ski skills program for kids aged 4-12).

"Gould's real, underlying strength is in its faculty and campus facilities," said LaVallee. "An art building, fieldhouse, science labs, and full departments with a diversity of teachers to be exposed to -- set the school apart from others with comparable ski programs."

Sunday River Ski Resort President Les Otten said, "For Tim to be coming back to Gould Academy proves that opportunities are now strong enough in Western Maine to attract some of the best people in ski racing in the U.S."

LaVallee first gained credibility as a successful collegiate coach and

Upton smelter drowned

By WENDY HANSCOM

An Upton man drowned late Saturday night after he slipped from a large rock along a stream in Richardson Township.

The body of Nelson Douglass, 42, was recovered about 8:30 Sunday morning from Upper Dam stream, which runs between Mooselookmeguntic and Upper Richardson lakes.

"It looks like he got on a big rock, slipped and got into the current and didn't have the strength to get out," said Game Warden Rick Mills of Andover. "It's a pretty strong current and the water's very cold. He had chest waders on, which usually fill up quickly with water, but his were belted at the waist so they didn't fill up too much."

Douglass' body was found about 50 yards downstream from the rock he was last seen standing on, according to Maine Warden Service spokesman Paul Fournier. Wardens requested that Upper Dam be closed temporarily to aid in finding and recovering the body, which was lodged against rocks.

Fournier said the medical examiner performing the autopsy on Douglass ruled death was due to accidental drowning. Douglass had a history of diabetes, Fournier said, but the disease was not considered a contributing factor to his death.

The stream is a popular smelting area in the spring, Fournier said, and Douglass had been with a group of other smelters prior to the accident.

The Warden Service was notified at 10:30 p.m. Saturday that Douglass was missing. Wardens Reginald Hammond of Rangeley and Charles Adkins of Wilsons Mills were also called to the scene.

Jeepers returning in May

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The sixth annual Maine Mountains Jeep Jamboree will be held in Bethel over the weekend of May 6-8.

Last year more than 120 jeeps and 260 people, some from as far away as Florida and Washington state, came into town for the annual springtime ride. This year at least that many are expected back, according to organizer Geoff Gaudreau, president of the Western Maine Mountain Jeepers, the local club that is co-sponsoring the event.

The visiting Jeepers provide a welcome boost to local businesses during the off-season lull, and the annual parade through downtown Bethel is becoming a popular diversion for local folks. Service organizations and other groups can also use the weekend as a fundraiser, by holding carwashes for the off-roaders as they return from the often muddy spring trails.

The event is also proving to be more than just a one-weekend economic shot in the arm. "I see at least a third of these folks back here again during the summer and fall," Gaudreau said.

This year the Jeepers will be riding a mixture of familiar and new trails, from South Paris to New Hampshire.

The event would not be possible without the cooperation of local landowners, Gaudreau stressed. And to return the favor, he said, the local club spends the following three weekends revisiting the same trails to repair any damage, and to work on bridges and water bars. For much of the rest of the summer, the local club members are also at work cleaning up other nearby trails.

Landowner Bob Chadbourne agreed that the cooperative effort has been a success so far, but he admitted to a bit of annual apprehension before the off-roaders arrive. "We get a little nervous each year," he said, especially about the possibility of individuals straying from the organized group and damaging trails. "But Geoff has done a super job organizing the event and respecting landowners' concerns."

This year's parade will be held on Saturday, at a time to be announced next week.

For more information about the Jamboree or the local club, contact Gaudreau at 824-2807, or Jeff Beebe at 743-0313.

RIVER VALLEY IS NO PLACE FOR A MOUNTAIN RANGE

To the Editor:

I am writing to urge Bethel residents to attend the public hearing on the Bethel Station project scheduled for April 28, 7 p.m. in the lecture hall of Telstar High School. The purpose of the hearing is to allow the town residents to express their views concerning Mr. Merrill's request for a waiver of height restrictions in the development area.

The site plan review ordinance limits the height of new hotel/motel/inn buildings in town to two and one-half stories or 35 feet above average grade. New commercial buildings in town have the same height restriction. Mr. Merrill is seeking to have the height restriction with the development raised to 40 feet; for his proposed hotel, he wants an exemption up to 70 feet, or twice the limit specifically set for new hotels. Although Mr. Merrill's architects stated at the last Planning Board meeting that the scale of the proposed hotel is taken from the Gould campus buildings, Mr. Merrill acknowledged that Hanscom Hall is only 50 feet tall from the downhill parking lot. Thus, the height of the proposed hotel is 40 percent higher than Hanscom Hall.

There is also the issue of bulk. Mr. Merrill has not yet filed a completed application and paid the customary fees, so it is hard at this stage to get a handle on what the perimeter and volume of this proposed 70-foot is likely to be -- a sufficient reason, in my view, to deny the request. However, he is talking about 128 guest rooms. A drawing shows a four-story facade with a high-windowed gable, which is essentially a fifth story, although one unlikely to have guest rooms because of the window size. The first floor will probably be a combination of retail, public space and services according to Mr. Merrill at the last Planning Board meeting. Therefore, the perimeter of the building will have to be big enough for approximately 42 rooms/floor (128 rooms divided by three floors). By way of comparison, the main building of the Bethel Inn has 57 guest rooms (total for two and one-half stories); the Norman's renovated barn has approximately 22 rooms on two floors (outside count only). It's fair to say that the proposed building is huge by Bethel standards.

As I don't have to tell anyone, the potential ramifications of the Bethel Station project, if it is approved, are enormous. In a February issue of the "Maine Times," Les Otten was quoted as saying there have already been discussions with the Post Office and with one of the banks about moving to the new area if it is built. At the same time, the scope of the project is in flux: although Mr. Merrill indicated at the Planning Board session that Phase III, the riverside park, had not been abandoned, Phase III did not appear on the charts and grids being handed around.

The only real control the town has at this point is through the Planning Board's insuring reasonable compliance with the ordinances of the town. Although the pending request for a waiver may seem like a preliminary issue, in many ways it will set the scope and scale of the entire project. The Bethel Station project has the potential to be an attractive, complementary addition to town life. It also has the potential to dwarf, supplant and ultimately destroy the essential quality of that life as we know it.

The river valley is no place for a mountain ridge. Please attend the meeting and make your voices heard.

NO, TO FAIRNESS ACT

To the Editor:

Congress is currently trying to pass a bill that would seriously hinder America's First Amendment right to be informed by a free press. Broadcasters currently choose subjects they think will interest their audiences. If an audience member is not happy with the station's coverage of that issue, he or she can easily change channels to one of the many alternatives.

But now the government is stepping in to regulate opinions by trying to pass the Fairness in Broadcasting Act. This bill would force broadcasters to give free, equal time to the opposing view of any issue discussed on a program. Stations deemed by the government to be biased or unfair would be forced to either pay large fines or lose their broadcasting license.

While the intention of the bill is to widen the arena of public discourse, it would have the opposite result. The idea was implemented in the 1960s in an effort to make it possible for people to be exposed to a wide variety of opinions with the limited technological resources available.

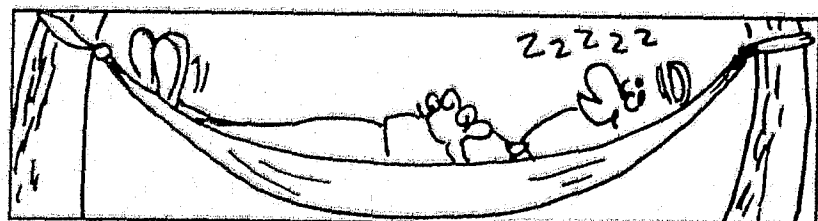

The bill was reversed in the 1980s when it was found that, not only had the abundance of stations available caused the bill to become outdated, but it also inhibited broadcasters from covering issues that might be deemed too controversial.

Rep. Edward Markey (D-Massachusetts), a staunch supporter of reinstating the Fairness Doctrine, said: "...the Fairness Doctrine should only apply to the bad guys... It would only apply to the bad apples of the bunch." Should we trust politicians to judge who is "bad" in regard to expressing opinions?

The Fairness in Broadcasting Act would clearly infringe on a broadcaster's right to discuss issues that have opposing sides. And in today's society, what newsworthy issues are not controversial, and on what issues is there only one view?

The government should not be allowed to simply disregard the U.S. Constitution when they so choose. Our First Amendment right to a free press protects not only journalists, but also listeners, so that we are assured to receive news and information that is not under the authority or scrutiny of the government.

NEW AMBULANCE ARRIVES--Arlene Greenleaf, director of the Bethel Emergency Ambulance Rescue Service, stands with the town's new ambulance. The town budgeted $76,000 for the vehicle and paid $75,108. From the

Bethel Town Office

Now that it appears winter is really over, I'd like to thank a couple of folks who I bet thought they'd get away with good deeds going unremarked. Mr. and Mrs. Tim Korhonen, for your assistance with a broken down road vehicle in the early hours of March 23; and Dick Douglass, for your bucketing back the skating rink when the snow was just too much to handle in February -- we thank you and salute you for demonstrating good citizenship. These are the things that build quality communities.

With spring comes an amazing array of things to be done and items to note:

Out at the airport, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has agreed to pay the town the money for the runway construction that it has withheld these four years, if the town will post the runway closed to night landings. There is no provision for enforcement, but the FAA believes the posting alone will protect it and the town should anyone ever hit the barn coming in at night.

New legislation has passed that virtually assures that no additional work will be required to the Interim Cover and Grading Program requirements. That means that over $30,000 which is currently set aside for future landfill closure requirements can now be dedicated to some other purpose.

The selectmen have reversed an earlier policy which required the police department to try to find the owners of illegally parked cars so that they could be moved rather than ticketed. From now on, illegally parked cars will be ticketed without notice. Special notices are going out to village businesses and additional signs will be erected.

The MDOT will be working on Route 2 from the overpass to the Newry town line this summer. It is expected that the turning lane required by the planning board for the Sunday River Brewing Company will be done at the same time.

The Town of Bethel will be finishing its sewer and storm drain projects at last. Mechanic and Summer Streets will be done this summer. Since the right-of-way for Mechanic Street is not documented, Mechanic Street property owners will be receiving requests from the town to sign deeds defining the town right-of-way, similar to those signed by Spring Street property owners in 1991.

In addition, it appears that some additional work will be done by the town and the Bethel Inn at the top of Mill Hill Road and the circle in front of the inn.

A final reminder that nomination papers are due May 10 at the town office. Positions to be elected are one selectmen, one assessor and two school board directors.

provide farmers with affordable insurance.

The Grange continued to thrive until the early 1880s, but prosperity began to return to the farmers and Grange membership fell off. In most southern states Granges disappeared entirely. But in New England, for the most part, the Grange continued to flourish.

Maine Grangers continued to fight in the state Legislature for improved rural schools, better roads, adult education, and they staunchly supported the University of Maine system.

"The Grange began to issue lists annually of books people should read," Howe said, "and some set up libraries."

The Grange also continued to provide a social and cultural outlet for the state's farmers.

"Most people think of Granges as meeting halls," Howe said, "but they made a difference culturally. They put on skits, plays and discussed agriculture-related topics. It was very much an educational and cultural resource for the people. It was the only escape people had from some of these dreary, isolated farms. Women could experience satisfaction with the work of the Grange."

Grangers also gave out educational scholarships and supported other charities.

By the turn of the century, there were between 50,000 and 60,000 Grange members in Maine, Howe said, and membership would stay steady until 1960 or so.

Membership in the Grange declined in the 1960s with the introduction and popularity of television, Howe said, and changes in the country's insurance laws which made all types of insurance more affordable to farmers.

Howe's interest in the Grange probably stemmed from his youth, he said. In 1957, he joined the East Bethel Grange at age 14.

"I have very pleasant memories of those years," Howe said, "and I'm still a member. I'm a fourth generation Granger, and my nephew is a fifth generation Granger."

Howe's book will be published by the State Grange. The book should be approximately 150 pages with more than 80 illustrations and photographs. It is expected to be off the presses this fall, Howe said.

Howe is also one of 20 contributors to an upcoming book on the history of Maine. The book will be the most comprehensive history of the state published since 1919, he said. The compilation will probably be used as a research tool and college textbook.

Howe is also working on other projects. He'd like to trace the history of the Greenback movement in Oxford County and he is currently working on a novel.

The work of fiction is about life in a small New England town which will probably be set in the 1970s, he said, with flashbacks into the past.

Howe is also editor of the Bethel Historical Society's "Bethel Currier."

Act II Curtain Falls

By MIKE BROWN

The Maine Legislature has adjourned its second regular session, a couple weeks beyond its promised date, but a week before the statutory deadline.

There was good and bad, like all legislative sessions, and which will be critiqued in coming weeks. But there seems to be a favored-flavor advertisement emerging from the polls that it was a productive, non-partisan session.

Hardly. A goodly part was an inauspicious beginning consumed by Martinizing -- would Speaker Martin step down gracefully or would he be toppled? Then came the issue of Martin's replacement. It was not a walk-on for Dan Gwadosky. The remaining days of the session were political back-and-forth and filling of a supplemental budget, the always controversial welfare and health issues and flotsam and jetsam bills, most of which died for lack of oxygen money.

But what gave the impression of peaceful parliamentary solidarity and bliss was the impending political year on the horizon. Probably half of the incumbent legislators will not return for the 117th legislature, even though term limits will not kick in until the 118th Legislature.

There will be a new governor, new legislative leadership and committee chairs. The Democrats firmly believe that they can turn Maine into a one-party state. That is, elect a majority in both houses of the state legislature, two District Congressional representatives and a U.S. Senator. That would leave the Republicans with Bill Cohen and a dead elephant.

If the Republicans don't get on the political ball, this will happen, because the D's are better state-organized. And the R's had better believe that after the June primaries, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell will be stumping (and $ giving) for every D-candidate in Maine from Eastport to Kittery.

A concern, however, of both parties is the drawing magnetism of Independents, which began with Jim Longley, then faltered, was resurrected by Ross Perot's startling support in Maine and now in Phoenix rising by gubernatorial candidate Angus King. Also, Independents (unenrolled) are the largest political party in Maine. And there will be several Independents on the ballots this year.

Two Democrat legislators, Ralph Coffman of Old Town and John Michaels of Auburn, switched from Democrats to Independents during the session. A rare event.

Michaels, a longtime Democrat maverick, continued his political barrage against Democrats right to the end of session. He was the challenger that brought D-Reps Vivian St. Onge of Greene, Susan Dore of Auburn, Constance Cole of Auburn, Congressional candidate Janet Mills of Wilton and gubernatorial candidate Joe Brennan before a hearing officer of the Secretary of State the day before the session.

Michaels' originally charged that there were discrepancies in the nominating petitions submitted by these candidates. At the hearing, however, Michaels dropped the challenges to Dore and Cole. The consequences of a finding by the Secretary of State that the petitions were illegal would mean that the candidates would only have the option of running as a write-in candidate.

Michaels' challenges may or may not be valid, but there is a tendency of all candidates to ignore the laws of petition signing and notarizing. Michaels found this out himself when the Secretary of State and Attorney General claimed to have found irregularities in the petition drive of Congressional term limits which Michaels led.

Michaels' confrontation with party loyalists nearly ended up in a halfway encounter of a fistcuffs kind with Rep. Roger Pouliot of Lewiston.

All in all, party politics is alive and flourishing in Maine.

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Thursday, May 5, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Featured speaker for the evening will be Oxford County Sheriff Lloyd Herrick, who will provide a history of the Oxford County Jail from its earliest days in 1810 to the present. Anyone interested in attending this meeting is cordially invited to do so.

Students at Telstar Regional High School and Gould Academy are reminded that the deadline for essays to be submitted to be considered for the Dr. Moses Mason Award is May 1.

Among the most recent new members of the Bethel Historical Society are the following: Fournin and Shirley Powell of Rockland; Jeff Angevine of Bethel; Joan Lovatt of East Sandwich, Mass.; James A. Thompson of Eden, N.C.; Gloria Lewis of Bethel; Lauretta Varo of Bethel; Norman and Barbara Ferguson of Hanover; Jean Mills of Bethel; David A. Ingraham of Hacienda Heights, Calif. A hearty welcome is extended to all of the above.

Just a few more places are available for the Society's Genealogical Seminar on Saturday, April 30. Registration fees for the afternoon session (1 to 4 p.m.) are $8 for members, $10 for non-members. Those wishing to attend should call the Society office at 824-2908. The seminar will be led by Stephen T. Seames of Bowdoin College.

Eagles move from N.H. to Maine

UPTON--The only pair of nesting bald eagles in New Hampshire moved to Maine this spring. Since 1989, the birds had nested in a pine tree near where the Magalloway River empties into Umbagog Lake. This spring, they moved to another tree about a mile away, but across the border into Maine.

Their former nest in New Hampshire disappeared last summer. New Hampshire wildlife officials think last year's two fledglings took the nest apart. The Umbagog eagles were the first to nest in New Hampshire in 40 years, and they chose the same tree that the last known pair of eagles used.

No band, no Memorial Day parade

ANDOVER--Fire Chief Ken Dixon told the Andover Board of Selectmen last week that the town's traditional Memorial Day parade may not be held this year, because there's no band available to play.

The band from Telstar High School in Bethel no longer exists, Dixon said, the victim of budget cuts over the past few years. The board made little comment and took the matter under advisement.

Bennett wants spending limits

NORWAY--State Rep. Richard Bennett, R-Norway, is challenging his three opponents to set a $100,000 campaign spending limit on the race for Republican candidate for Congress in Maine Second Congressional District. The primary is June 14.

Bennett opponents are Stephen M. Zirkiton of Bangor, Hollis M. Greenlaw of Fairfield and Glenn MacNaughton of Greenville. Bennett recently sponsored two bills in the state Legislature to encourage voluntary campaign spending limits, but both were killed.

Zirkiton said he will not accept the challenge, because he sees it as a publicity ploy. MacNaughton accepted the challenge and Greenlaw wanted to talk to Bennett before making a decision.

Permit regulations questioned

WOODSTOCK--The Woodstock Planning Board will decide whether or not an after-the-fact building permit is needed for work done on a Route 26 barn foundation.

Town Code Enforcement Officer Mark Stearns said last week that the barn's foundation was replaced by Robert Sweetser. The town's ordinance requires a permit for new construction involving more than $1,000 in total costs. Stearns said he was unsure whether or not replacing the barn's foundation was considered "new construction."

The town's three selectmen said they thought it should be considered new construction and that an after-the-fact permit should be obtained from the town's Planning Board. Stearns told that board that the Andros-coggin Valley Council of Governments said it should not be considered new construction. Selectmen said they were willing to leave the final decision up to the town's Planning Board.

Pace receives state excellence award

NORWAY--The Maine Emergency Medical Services Board has selected Pace Paramedic Service as the recipient of the 1994 EMS System Excellence Award for the state. This is the first time that a recipient of a state EMS award has repeated in that category a second time. The award will be presented at a luncheon on May 21 at the Augusta Civic Center.

Railroad gets grant for N.H. repairs

STRATFORD, N.H.--The St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railroad was recently awarded a $375,250 federal grant for improvements to a 52-mile stretch of track from Shelburne to Stratford, N.H. The funds will be used to replace 10,000 railroad crossing ties and to make surface improvements.

Board approves building permits

ANDOVER--The town's Planning Board last week approved three building permits. Donald Smith's request for a small renovation project at his seasonal residence on the South Arm Road was approved. Stacy Gammon also received a permit to build a 30x40 foot house on the East Andover Road. Franklin Gammon was given the go ahead to construct a 20x30 addition to his existing garage on the East Andover Road.

County workers will return money

PARIS--Four Oxford County Sheriff's Office employees who were mistakenly overpaid a total of $16,000 will return the money through payroll deductions.

The four female county jail corrections officers will reimburse the county the money over a four-year period. The deductions will amount to about $20 per week for each employee.

Roads task force wants updated maps

NEWRY--The task force put together to study roads in Newry has asked Sunday River Ski Resort to provide the town with new maps of its proposed roads.

Selectman James Sysko said the town needs updated maps for public view showing any changes that have been made to proposed routes into planned new development in the Jordan Bowl area.

Maple syrup producers keep label

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Maine maple syrup producers will still be allowed to use the label "Made in Maine" as a purity gauge.

According to Maine regulations, syrup with that label must have no chemical additives. But the federal government allows maple syrup products to contain some chemical additives and still be labeled "syrup."

The 1990 federal law that would have forced Maine to comply with the weaker federal labeling standard was overruled by the U.S. Senate last week, so Maine can still insist that maple syrup with the label "Made in Maine" on it must have no chemical additives.

From the Bethel Police log:

Wife shreds hubby's duds

Police responded to a Bethel man's complaint Sunday that his estranged wife had cut up most of his clothing. The man had gone to his former home to pick up his clothes and later discovered that a pair of sneakers and almost all of his pants, shirts and underwear had been shredded.

In other police news last week, April 24 at 10:53 p.m. police warned a group of juveniles near the Ethel Bisbee school to stop making noise. Early that day, police responded to a Intervale Road man's report that a back side window of his car had been shot out while he was travelling on the Intervale Road. The man said he saw juveniles in the area with a rifle. The police report did not indicate whether police suspect the window was blown out by BB-gun fire or a rifle shot.

April 23, a lower Main Street resident reported that a gust of wind blew asphalt roofing of a neighboring building damaging two cars parked in his driveway. Damage to each car was estimated at $50 each.

April 22, police helped escort an unwanted subject out of the Backstage Lounge.

April 22, a Sabattus resident hit and killed a deer near the Riverview Motel on Route 26.

April 20, Earl G. Hopkins, 34, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle after license suspension.

April 19, a Tyler Street resident reported that a neighbors green dirt bike, reported missing recently, was found in her backyard.

Rabies

In Massachusetts, public health officials are supporting a plan to vaccinate raccoons, by putting an oral vaccine in fishmeal baits. The baits will be set out on both sides of Cape Cod Canal in an attempt to prevent the disease from spreading to the Cape Cod peninsula and the islands off its coast. The baits contain an ampule of vaccine to immunize any raccoon that eats it.

In New Hampshire, state legislators are considering a bill that would force cat owners to license their pets.

Maine and New Hampshire both have state laws that require cats to be vaccinated against rabies, but some New Hampshire legislators say licensing cats would make that law more enforceable.

In Maine, more than half of the state's game wardens have opted to participate in a vaccination program against the disease. The vaccine is a series of three interdermal shots.

State public health officials are also preparing a handout for towns, animal control officers, physicians and law enforcement officials.

The procedural manual will outline which state agencies to contact regarding suspected rabies-related incidents.

Education is the key

The greatest concern regarding rabies is human exposure and children may be at more risk than adults.

People can get the disease from wildlife or unvaccinated pets.

Rabies vaccines are available for cats, dogs, horses, cows and other domesticated animals.

Vaccinating pets, and particularly cats, is one of the best ways to prevent humans from contracting the disease, according to Bethel veterinarian Gary Stuer.

"Cats are the ones out there in the world and probably have a greater chance of being exposed," Stuer said. "A lot of people don't get their cats vaccinated, but they really should."

The state veterinarian agreed.

"It's state law that cats get a rabies shot," Ridky said. "Cats are the ones out in the field and routinely come home with bite wounds and abscesses. Cats are often the link between the wildlife population and humans. It's a logical requirement and will help break the chain between wildlife and humans."

The vaccine cost is usually about $10, Stuer said.

If an unvaccinated pet gets bit by wildlife, veterinarians will probably recommend that the pet be destroyed.

Vaccinated pets bitten by wildlife should be quarantined for up to six weeks, Hilton said, meaning the animal should be closely watched and supervised.

Any pet suspected of coming in contact with a wild animal should be handled with care, he said.

"Any pet with saliva or blood on it from an unknown source should be handled carefully," Hilton said. "The pet and people should be washed with soap and water. The virus doesn't last long outside the body, and usually doesn't penetrate healthy skin."

It's not always easy to tell if an animal has rabies.

Ridky said he knew of cases in New Hampshire and Canada where small kittens infected with the disease just simply died with no other symptoms than "fading out." It is just as hard to tell with wild animals too, he said.

"A lot of people look at it as a salivating, aggressive animal and that's not always the case," Ridky said. "Most of the time it's a dumb or paralytic case, where the animal moves slowly or is inactive. Be suspicious of any animal you see where is shouldn't be, like a raccoon on the porch in the day time, or an overly friendly animal. You want to avoid wildlife, period."

Rabid animals can wander into populated areas, Hilton said, but unvaccinated pets provide the most danger to humans.

"You don't walk out into the woods and have rabid animals lunging at you," Hilton said. "Cats and dogs go out there, get into an altercation with an animal then come home and transfer the disease to humans. If a large percentage of people vaccinate their cats and dogs then rabies won't be a large concern to people."

Children should be well aware of all the dangers wild animals and stray dogs and cats present, Hilton said.

"Children are apt to handle wildlife," he said. "They see a docile animal and are apt to approach it and they run the risk of getting bit. Children should be told by parents and their schools not to come in contact with any strange animals, especially coons."

Children and adults are also apt to want to help baby raccoons or other animals orphaned by mothers dead of rabies or other disease. But the animals are best left in the woods, Hilton said.

"In human terms it sounds a bit harsh," he said, "but it is not as harsh as it seems. It's a perfectly reasonable thing to do from a natural perspective."

Removing anything that might attract wild animals to a home is also a good idea, said Game Warden Rick Mills of Andover.

Raccoons are attracted to trash, pet food and bird seeds and suet that is left outside the home, he said.

The handling of suspicious wildlife around the home is pretty much left up to individual homeowners, Hilton said.

If a suspicious animal has bitten a human or pet, homeowners and ACOs who dispatch the animals themselves need to remember that it is the brains of the animal the state needs to complete testing, Hilton said.

There has not been a case in Maine in recent memory where a human contracted rabies, Hilton said. If a rabies contact is confirmed, there is treatment available.

"If someone does get bit or they've been exposed to rabies, they shouldn't panic," he said. "It's 100 percent treatable. It's not painful. It's a shot in the arm. It is expensive though. It's a $1,500 treatment for post-exposure treatment."

Rabies in Maine may be a problem for the next few years.

"It's going to be here a long time," Stuer said. "It won't go away soon. It will decimate the raccoon population, but it will also stay around in low levels."

THIS WON'T HURT--Pet owner Wende Gray winces a bit as her dog, Cargo, gets her annual rabies shot from Bethel veterinarian Gary Stuer. Cargo seemed totally oblivious to the process. State officials and local veterinarians are recommending that pet owners vaccinate their dogs and cats against rabies. State law requires that dogs and cats get vaccinated, but with rabies running rampant in much of New England's raccoon population, the shots are seen as even more important this year.

Magazines can now be recycled

By WENDY HANSCOM

Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Corporation has added magazines to its list of recyclable materials.

New holding bins have been delivered to Bethel, Newry and the Greenwood and Woodstock recycling centers.

Magazines and glossy catalogs are the only materials that should be put in the bins, according to OCRSWC education director Marie Bartlett.

Things to keep out of the bins are string, plastic wrap, phone books, paperback books, newspaper inserts and all junk mail, including any glossy-type pages that come in mailings.

OCRSWC plans to run the magazines through its new shredder and sell the by product to Bowater, a division of Great North Paper in Millinockett.

The company uses the shredded magazines in its paper de-inking process, Bartlett said.

director of skiing at the University of Colorado, through three consecutive seasons of top-three finishes at the NCAA Championships.

"Tim's understanding of the dynamics of successful student-ski racers is readily apparent," said Clough. "He is clear that those who succeed have control over their academic lives in order to make it in collegiate sports." LaVallee echoed this concern, saying, "We have the quality of skiing to develop each to his or her maximum, but at no time are we going to sacrifice a person's academic future."

The program will depend highly on the facilities offered by Sunday River Ski Resort, which in addition to providing training facilities is working with Gould in designing a special lodge for alpine and freestyle competitors at Gould and Sunday River. "Sunday River arguably has the earliest dependable skiing, the best quality snow, and a tremendous variety of terrain," LaVallee said. "Not once have I ever felt limited in the use of terrain in developing skiers."

The new program gets underway this summer, when coaches LaVallee, Gardner, Simard, and J1 coach John Hutchins will lead an on-snow glacier training camp in Tignes, France from June 23 to July 11.

Gould NHS inductees

Gould Academy senior and National Honor Society member Gwen Stockwell of Bridgton recently announced Gould's newly inducted members in an all-school assembly.

According to Stockwell, for the first time, the national Honor Society solicited essays from academically qualified students, asking them to state why they should be considered. The student members of the NHS review the essays, then made their recommendations to the faculty.

"The faculty accepted all of our recommendations, and named a couple of additional inductees," Stockwell said.

This year's inductees are: Anneliese Bass, Bethel; Tamara Bucknell-Pogue, West Hartford, Conn.; Darby Hickey, Bryant Pond; Jill Huntsberger, Stanley; Idaho; Ben Kamilewicz, Yarmouth; Greg Matthews, Bozeman, Mont.; and Chris Shaner, Norway.

Songo Pond

By ALICE KIMBALL

Yesterday, the ice on the pond looked as if it could break up and disappear any day, but today it is white and solid again with a thin, fresh coating of snow. There is much open water along the shore. We heard a duck Sunday when we got home from church but could not find him anywhere. Lots of birds are returning now.

Phyllis and Bill Bancroft visited relatives in South Waterford on Sunday. Mrs. Marion Arsenault is expected home to Norway this weekend after spending the winter near her daughter in Florida.

Kenny Newell and family have returned to his home here after wintering in Florida.

Brandon and Tara Salway of Old Orchard Beach were callers here the first of the week after spending the weekend in Montreal, Canada.

Mrs. Dottie Adams spent a couple of afternoons here this week.

Norma Salway went to Portland Friday morning to bring Kathy Gatchell home with her while Kass had a medical appointment.

The last two mornings we have awakened to a fresh, white ground cover -- everything did look so clean -- but with the temperature in the 20s it was not what we wanted to see for nearly the last week of April. Keeping in touch with kids today is really quite bizarre.

We call our son, and reach his fax. The other responds from his car. -- L. Kavanaugh--

CITIZENSHIP MEDAL AWARDED TO NEWRY TEEN—The Jackson-Silver American Legion Auxiliary of Locke Mills gave Patrick Moore of Newry a citizenship award last week, for his rescue of Carl Bisbee of Paris. The Auxiliary gave Moore a certificate of appreciation and a medal. Here Moore accepts congratulations and a cash gift from Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bisbee of Paris. The Bisbees were on hand to publicly thank Moore on behalf of Bisbee's father, Carl. Moore helped save Carl Bisbee's life after his Paris garage caught on fire in January. Moore and his mother Susan Brown spotted Bisbee crawling from the burning building with his clothes on fire. Moore was also congratulated by NOVA guidance counselor Dan Hart. Moore is studying metal trades and serving as a teacher's assistant at NOVA this semester. (Photo by Wendy Hunscom)

Jackson-Silver Auxiliary

Family, friends, school officials and classmates, Legionnaires and Auxiliary members gathered on Thursday, April 21 to honor Patrick Moore of Newry.

After the usual opening prayer and salute to the flag, President Leah Deegan asked the Sgt. at Arms to escort Patrick to the podium. She told of his heroic act last January when he used a blanket to extinguish the flames on the clothing of Carl Bisbee, and how this follows the tradition of Legionnaires in their concern for others.

A framed citizenship certificate and a medal were presented from the auxiliary. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bisbee (son of Carl) were present and called upon, as they had expressed a wish to also recognize his heroic efforts. With tears and good wishes they presented an envelope which, it was later learned, contained a very generous cash gift. Mr. Dan Hart, guidance counselor at the NOVA program which Patrick attends for metal trades training, spoke of this young man's accomplishments in that program. He explained that the NOVA program usually calls for two semesters, but if the student wishes he may apply to attend for a third. With his personal and academic development Patrick had earned this privilege and is now in his third semester, where he is helping the instructor with the younger students, who have found him most helpful.

Before breaking for refreshments, President Deegan, in her last official act, presented paid-up life memberships to Mary Lyon and Kathleen McAllister.

Following the presentation there was much picture taking, refreshments were served, and everyone could get an opportunity to speak with Patrick, his mother and stepfather, and the Bisbee family. Carl Bisbee was hospitalized for three weeks for treatment of his burns, was home for three weeks and returned to the hospital for further treatment. It was then discovered that he had a heart condition requiring surgery, which he underwent on Wednesday.

In the meeting which followed, it was voted to contribute $100 toward relief efforts for Fort Fairfield citizens in their recovery from the recent floods there.

In other business officers for the ensuing year were elected. They are: President, Noreen Russo; 1st V.P., Martha Stowell; 2nd V.P., Leah Deegan; Secretary, Olive Risko; Treasurer, Vera Cross; Chaplain, Jackie Libby; Sgt. at Arms, Betsy Tripp; Historian, Helen Cummings. Installation will take place on May 5.

On April 30 the Department Junior Auxiliary will have its annual convention at the Locke Mills Legion Hall. A number of department officers of the Senior Auxiliary will be present. The session begins at 10 a.m. Business will include election of officers and installation. Jackson-Silver will serve a luncheon at noon and the business will continue in the afternoon.

Next meeting of Jackson-Silver Auxiliary is May 5 for installation of officers at 7 p.m. Refreshments to follow.

East Bethel

By NANCY MERCER

East Bethel Cemetery Association will hold its yearly meeting on May 2 at 7 p.m. at Leslie Noyes' home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Olson and sons Karl and Kane attended a Sea Dogs game in Portland on April 22.

Rudi Honkala returned on April 20 from a trip to Maryland where he visited his son Doug and brother Fred. He visited his brother Adolf in Richmond, Va., and daughter Kristi in Virginia. He visited friends also. He went to St. Louis and visited Antarctic co-workers. He visited a nephew south of Chicago and took the northern route home. He saw five wild turkeys on a major highway in upstate New York. He couldn't believe it.

Charles Smith hopes to be home soon, after more needed tests are completed. He is doing very well.

Florence Hastings spent a week in Massachusetts and a week in Connecticut visiting family. She enjoyed the trip.

Heather Hallman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hallman, was picked up by Arlene Harrington on April 20, which was school vacation and was returned on the 24th.

Melvin Gallant of Rumford visited Leland Coolidge recently. They worked together at Boise.

Polly Smith, Gary Smith, Wanda Howard and Donna Bernard took Charlie Smith out to dinner on April 17. They also took him to Flying Point in Freeport.

North Newry

By GIL SEELEY

Newry will have its own girls' softball team this year. It will be for girls in third through sixth grade. Registration and a field practice for the team will be after school on Thursday, April 28, at the Newry Town Office. If you have any questions, call Denise at 824-3478 or Gail at 824-3244.

Betsy Clark is back from a week's trip to New Hampshire, where she visited with her mother who has been ill and in the hospital. Betsy also enjoyed the company of her other relatives while there. We wish her mother a speedy recovery.

The members of the "Newry Bowling Gang" who went to the Oxford Lanes in Rumford last week were: Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Sylvia Wight, Bea Lowell, Doris Parent, Elsie Hadfield and Olive Anderson. On the overall scores, Karlene was high on the triples beating Gil by one pin... But it was a close one on the first string when Gil and Betsy tied on a 91 score... Then Karlene came on with a 95 score in the second string...but Gil tied with her for the singles on the third string with a 95 score. So Karlene won on the triples by one pin, and tied with Gil on the singles. (Hope you can figure that out!) Of the "Righties," Sylvia was high on both the triples and singles. Betsy had one strike and one spare, Karlene had three spares and one strike, Gil had two spares, Sylvia had one spare, Elsie had one spare, Doris had one spare and Olive had two spares.

Happy Birthday to Louise Tetley (May 5th) and Rena Powers (May 12th). And all others born in the sign of Taurus, April 21-May 20.

(Not to be taken seriously.) People born in the sign of Taurus are security minded, that is their most important objective. Their objective is to accumulate money. They love beauty and they are often quite charming. They have an excellent business sense. They crave luxury, art, and good food. Their birthstones are turquoise, jade, diamond and emerald, which bestows good memory and safety in travel. Their colors that draw luck are shades of pink, pale blue, yellow, pastel shades of green. Their favorite flowers are daisy, peony, pink roses, tulips, lilacs and narcissus. Their places for opportunity are Panama and Vancouver.

Chris Toti (my nephew Carl's son) was in Maine with three friends all from Rhode Island for the weekend of April 16 to do some skiing, but no skiing was done, as the weather was rainy and murky. So Chris decided it was a good time to come and visit his Great Aunt...me, his grandmother's sister on his father's side. Are you confused yet??? Well, anyway, we had a very nice visit for about two hours. I wished it could have been longer, but maybe next time will be better. I was so glad to see him. It was at his home that we had the big cookout last July when I went to Rhode Island for a short visit. Pretty soon Theresa will be coming to visit me.

Bill and Sylvia Wight are back from a week's vacation in Florida.

The Windy Valleys Sno-mobile Club met Thursday night, April 21, with president Owen Wight presiding. Secretary Sylvia Gray read the notes of the last meeting, and treasurer Bob Lowell brought the finances up to date. Safety director Don Gray had no bad news except a report on his sore thumb! The trail men, Leon, Herb, Owen and Bill reported on some bridge repairs to be done sometime in the summer. M.S.A. director alternates Sylvia and Bill Wight were at the Bangor Civic Center in Bangor for the annual meeting on Saturday, April 23. Vice president Leon Dunn mentioned that a club house will be built sometime this summer with the help of volunteers. It was also voted to change the meeting night to the first Tuesday of each month when the club resumes their actions in September after the summer hiatus. Also voted on was a lawn sale on the 21st of June at Newry Corner. The club has a lot of "stuff" like stoves, washing machines, furniture, etc. More on this later. Next meeting will be May 19 at 7 p.m. at the Town Building. The snowmobiles were put to rest 'til next winter. Coffee and so forth was enjoyed and the meeting adjourned.

iron and freshen the spring-summer things. Deep breath -- breathe in the cool, crisp spring air -- let go of all the stale winter things; it's house cleaning time in Maine. It's also a time, I guess, of reevaluating our lives and put into order things that have been at loose ends for awhile. Birds are building their new homes, chirping and tract-a-vating, so devoted and caring. Let's take a lesson from them, we the inhabitants of this weary self-serving world and rebuild and clean out our "nests," replacing self-gratification with devoted love to each other. Maybe this old world could use it, don't you think, Achey-breaky hearts, long for Love? Until next week, then, May God Bless.

Neighbors of this community were saddened when we got the news that Ellen Amadon and her little "Peke" dog Judy were no longer able to maintain their home here due to illness. Her daughters, stepdaughters and stepsons were here all last week, taking care of her personal affairs. One daughter, Leona Benson of Ozark, Ala., and stepdaughter Jackie of Florida called upon me during their stay here. I have known "Lonnie" since she was a sophomore at Woodstock High School, and enjoyed their visit to me immensely. Keep up your courage, for Ellen, for Judy and all of us -- there are better days ahead.

Mildred McLain was in Norway for her regular check-up with her doctor one day last week.

Vacation time for all the school children -- Justin Boker has left for Everett, Mass., where he will visit a family friend, Joseph Bagnell.

Beverly Corriveau hosted a baby shower recently with her new grandson Randy Travis Morin as the honored guest. Family members and friends of little Travis showered him with gifts and much attention. A shower cake made by a friend of a family member was enjoyed, along with other refreshments, and the whole affair was surveyed by young Randy with great curiosity and appreciation for his many gifts.

Kenneth Cole, Fabian Corriveau and Ted Taylor traveled to Augusta recently on town business for the Fire Department.

Tammy Buckley and two children, Amy and Amanda, of Massachusetts were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Corriveau, this past week. There will be a rabies clinic held at the Town Hall here in Gilead on April 30 (Saturday) at 2 p.m.

Correction: last week's column should have said Darlene Corriveau is working toward opening "affordable housing" on the property next to the Forest Service picnic area, not "low-income housing."

Now that the daily word puzzle in the Lewiston paper is done I can get to the weekly news. How's that for priorities? It's just a fun thing to do and doesn't take long at all.

Al Yemma is at home now after visiting his son and family a few days in Massachusetts.

It's good to see our friends June and Graham Batchelder home from Florida, also Ed and Bette Barker.

On April 19 there was a special townspeople church meeting held at the East Stoneham Congregational Church at 7 p.m., with president Fran Hamilton speaking and asking for suggestions on how to keep the church alive. There were a few comments and suggestions and questions. Another meeting will be planned for the near future with a speaker from the Maine Church Association to be here to inform people of the town why we belong to the association and how it helps us to belong. It's a matter of helping each other, and isn't that what life is all about -- helping each other. We'll clue you in on the date and time and hopefully more townspeople will turn out to that meeting and get involved.

I had fun getting involved last Tuesday in helping out in the Coffee Shop at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway. I really enjoyed doing it and hope to do more in the future. Earl Littlefield has been and is volunteering at the hospital doing various things on certain days.

Lawrence Daddum, a former resident of town, is in the Miles Memorial Hospital in Damariscotta where he had knee surgery. Susan Daddum and friends from Damariscotta were in town on Sunday on business and called on friends.

Troy and Eric Nelson have been working for their grandfather Albert Nelson, Sr., during school vacation.

The Stoneham Volunteer Firemen burned grass on Friday and on Saturday had a controlled burn of an old building at Waterford, at the Waterford Town Farm. This was also an air pack training session. Also, the Saturday before, the firemen had a burn session at the old Preston building. This involved pump training. There is a lot of learning at these sessions and it is all volunteer and members give much of their time to do it.

Christian Women in Service invites the public to a meeting on Thursday, April 28, at 7 p.m. at the East Stoneham Church where the Reverend and Mrs. Robert Loring will be showing slides or video of their recent trip to Jerusalem. Donations to be given to the Thank Offering for the Friendship Home for street people in the Portland area. This sounds like an interesting evening and hope people will take the time to go meet these people and see the slides.

Jeff Chandler and Jeremy Curley are on the Telstar Middle School Baseball Team. Becky Chandler is catcher for the Telstar Varsity Softball Team. I missed them when I put the names in for other sports this winter. I'm sorry, as Jeff and Becky are two of the names I recognize as being South Woodstock residents.

Jane Chandler slipped and broke her ankle recently. She was out of work for a while but has now returned to work. She has had a walking cast to make it easier to get around.

If any youngsters want to play summer baseball or softball, they can still sign up to play by contacting Ellie Newell or Brian Dunham. This is a good chance to have fun this summer.

Marta and Nicholas Clements had two of their grandnephews, Nicholas Brazier (named for uncle Nick) and Elijah Brazier during school vacation for a couple of days. Nicholas is 10 years old and Elijah is 7 and they live in Searsport. They all visited the Children's Museum in Portland, which they enjoyed very much.

Harry Hutchinson is improving after having surgery on his hand. It has been very painful and I am glad to see he's out and around.

Claribel Poland was taken by ambulance to Stephens Memorial Hospital Wednesday night. She got real sick very suddenly and very dizzy. She also had a cataract removed from her eye that morning. I haven't talked with her but hear she is improving and didn't need to have a hospital stay after all.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society, reports that Olive Risko gave an informative talk on coins at the society recently. She spoke on their history. The historical society promotes crafts of all types. The handmade items are always interesting. They encourage you to develop a hobby. The society promotes citizenship and involvement in civic activities and also encourages research at the museum.

Sarah and Jessie Hart have been helping me spring clean during school vacation. Finally, they can help Gram work instead of the other way around.

It snowed hard this morning; the weatherman said only a flurry, which I guess it was, but it left quite a bit on the ground before it was through. It melted real fast.

Kim Inman, Vernie and Walter, Jr., and Janna Beane visited Kim's sister Linda Lawton in Enfield, Conn., during the past weekend.

The West Paris Historical Society met on Monday evening with 30 in attendance. A potluck supper was enjoyed prior to the meeting, with Edith and Ivan Morey in charge. It was decided to get an estimate for having one side of the hall painted. Joyce Lamb and Lempi Cyr volunteered to be at the historical building from 3 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. on the day of the Alumni Banquet in June. Olga Gellatly will take care of publicity. The society will be furnishing pictures for an Oxford Hills Pictorial History Book. The next meeting will be on May 16. The supper committee will be Sayward and Cynthia Lamb. Joyce Lamb will obtain the entertainment.

Richard and Jan Bradcen, Jason and Jamie have been spending vacation week in Florida at Disney World. Howard Ellingwood is recuperating at home after a week at Stephens Memorial Hospital where he had surgery. We are sorry to learn of the death of Edward Hilber in Lakeland, Fla. He and "Vi" used to be our neighbors here on High Street.

Last week we were saying "Hello," to spring. The wind smelled of adventure; moist rain yet warm with sunshine. We were wiping away the cobwebs of a long, cold winter. We were remembering a little green patch of grass, under an old tree, on the shore of some childhood pond, more precious than all other material things, men spent a lifetime and their health striving for. We dreamed of the last snow, even in the woods gone.

I may have been like the robins, a too early believer in spring time. The signs were there, marching ahead a stride. Then what happened? Nature pursued her own pattern of April, turned and marched back two complete strides.

However, I have been out to walk. The roads will never end out in the hills. They lead you to where the shadows play and where there is a waiting silence. I discovered as usual how impressive the mountains were beyond the dark waters.

Near the swamp it was misty with the tender coloring of April buds. The red winged blackbirds didn't mind the cold for their "Okalee" came from near the Sanborn River.

The ducks called in deep voices and they certainly weren't nightingales; but a beautiful motion, as their bodies moved and they gabbled. Why they came and how they know where to find food and rest, I wonder about. Perhaps their message is "Believe in spring."

I chased the winds where they MORE than whispered in the listening sky. In places I caught the sun where it was sheltered and the air was still. There were gentle lines of water that seemed to be flowing nowhere in particular.

I turned from the highway to share secrets in small places, above the earth. It's a gentle stirring deep inside that insists you walk instead of ride.

I again dream of tomorrow with another step forward and still think of spring.

It's so nice to see the ice gone out front of my house, and to see the water so blue.

Last Saturday I attended the meeting of O.C.R.T. in Bethel with Lettie Brooks, Dorothy Ross, Louvie Coffin and Eleanor Heath. In spite of the rain and fog there was a good attendance.

John and Dot Betts were in Conway over the weekend.

I went to see my brother, Ernest, at "Clover" in Auburn. My nephew, Albert Curtis and his mother, took me.

Ron and Betty Jordan welcomed their first grandchild on April 13. Jacob was a mite small, but Betty decided to keep him. His parents are David and Michelle Strout of Lewiston.

I welcomed a new great-grandson, Andrew, born to Eric and Darcie Bernier on April 12 in Germany.

Speaking of the weather, I remarked that it was a mighty cold winter. Vi concurred adding that it looked like it was going to be a cold winter right through summer.

Mae Goodrum of Gorham, N.H., celebrated her 70th birthday, along with her son Dope who celebrated his 50th, at a surprise party in Gorham, N.H. Lots of relatives and friends attended.

We had a short warm spell, a startling brief thunderstorm, with such a long roll of thunder that we wondered if it stalled or got stuck in a groove, and snow frequently during mid-April.

Frank and Gert Pooler checked out their camp and spent an overnight. The water pipes haven't recovered yet.

In spite of Nature's weather whims, the purple croci are making a big splash of color in the flower garden.

Howdy folks. This is a cloudy and cool Monday morning, but we have had some real nice weather lately. There has also been a lot of wind, but it seemed like it helped the snow and ice to melt. The wind blew quite hard here a week ago this morning, but I decided to do some laundry. I also decided to hang it outside to dry, so I really pinned it and it was all in place when I went to get it in.

Peggy took me down for physical therapy on Tuesday morning. I was there for about one hour. We returned home, had an early lunch, and then Peggy went down street again to have her hair trimmed and set.

We visited with Richard and Barbara Felt in the evening.

Wednesday was a mostly rainy day, with plenty of fog, but since we were a little reluctant to work outside in the rain, we decided to go to the Maine Medical Center in Portland to visit sister Viva. Viva suffered a stroke a few days before that and had to be hospitalized for a few days.

Her daughter, Wynona Woolf, and her two granddaughters were also there to visit her. Wynona reported that Viva had improved a lot since the Monday and Tuesday before. She was still some disoriented but knew pretty much of what was going on. She was hooked up to lots of plastic tubing, as they were giving her some antibiotics by intravenous feeding.

It was very foggy as we went to Portland but had cleared some when we got ready to return home.

We were in the road a lot on Thursday. I had to go for another physical therapy session in the forenoon. I then had to go to the hospital to have my monthly blood test. We then shopped at Ames, where I got some shoes that I hope will be comfortable for wearing on our trip to Florida soon. I also thought it about time to lay the red flannels away for a few months, and I bought some briefs to replace them.

We ate lunch at the new Pizza Hut restaurant, which is near the new, big Super Shop 'n Save building. We had a very nice lunch. The pizza was very good and the salad bar was excellent, with a wide variety of choices.

We then went on to Lewiston where I had an eye appointment with Dr. Rynne. My eyes have improved some lately, so now when I look at a pretty lady, I see just one pretty lady instead of one and a half pretty ladies. Since my eye has improved some, Dr. Rynne chose to do nothing for that eye, hoping that it will keep improving by itself.

Friday was a real summery day, too nice to stay inside. I decided to wash my bedding and hang it out to dry. Then I went outside and broke up more ice so that it would melt faster. There is lots of snow that melts and the water runs down by our mobile home each spring. At least it keeps right on going down below us. I feel sorry for some people with homes in flood areas. There is a new home further down on High Street that is almost completely surrounded by water at the present time. If it were mine I would be very disappointed.

I also decided that it was time to remove the double windows. I've stored them away for a few months, but time to put them back on will come fast.

Callers on Friday were Lettie and Carl Brooks.

Peggy's grandson, Russell Merrill, called to see us on Saturday. He had been spending a long weekend with his parents, Loretta and Emerson Merrill of West Bethel. He had to return to his work in Georgia, yesterday.

Peggy attended the dance at West Paris Grange Hall Saturday night. They started with a small crowd, but ended up with a good crowd. This dance was for the benefit of the West Paris Sportsman's Club. There will be dances at the Locke Mills Town Hall on April 23 and again on April 30, with music by the Richard Felt Orchestra. They always have a good time at these dances.

We had our first parsnips yesterday, fresh from the garden. They were delicious.

After our visit with Viva we did some shopping at K-Mart before returning home. Peggy and I visited Richard and Barbara Felt last evening.

Tuesday morning, Mary Lovejoy accompanied the first and second grades from West Paris School on a field trip to Crystal Spring Farm below Norway.

Mary took her parents, Impi and Raymond Mack, to Lewiston on Thursday for their eye appointments with Dr. Woolf.

Don't forget the Craft, White Elephant and Food Sale to be held at West Paris Grange on May 7, from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. For information or to reserve a table, contact Linona Blake at 674-3872 or Mary Lovejoy at 674-2147. Most of the tables have already been reserved, so call soon if interested.

On July 19 there will be a Musical Supper at the Locke Mills Legion Hall, hosted by Franklin Grange of Bryant Pond. A supper ticket will get you a good supper, starting at 5:30 p.m. This will be followed by a variety show and there will be dancing after the show. All for the price of a supper ticket ($5 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12). What a bargain! There will be lots of music and entertainment. Come one, come all.

Oxford Pomona Grange will meet at Bear Mountain Grange in South Waterford on May 3, with a 6:30 p.m. potluck supper and a 7:30 p.m. meeting.

Task Force notes:

In addition to the "Serving Diverse Customers" workshop, the following additional topics were also discussed at the April 10 meeting of the Bethel Area Task Force: The Just Imagine Coffeehouse, 1994 NTL season, and summer activities.

Maria Termini and Brendon Bass reported on the Just Imagine Coffeehouse, which will end its second full season on May 7. The coffeehouse, an alternative, alcohol-free/smoke-free environment with entertainment for family enjoyment, is an outcome of the Community Conference sponsored by the Task Force in November 1991.

Starting during that winter, the committee undertook an ambitious twice-monthly format the following full season. This current season they modified to a monthly, first Saturday, opening. As the season ends, they are evaluating the project to make decisions about the 1994-95 operation. The attendance this season has been disappointing: Is it a result of the less frequent opening dates; a product of bad weather, or other reason?

For the May 7 coffeehouse, a singing/instrumental duo will perform. The hours are from 7 to 10 p.m., in the dining room (lower level, rear entrance) of the West Parish Congregational Church on Church Street in Bethel. There is a small admission fee. Refreshments are available. In addition to Bass and Termini, faithful coffeehouse workers include Jan Todd, Nancy Davis, Patricia Williams, Carol Fiske, Jody Carter, Kathi Stucchi, Gwyneth Bohr, Rocky Graham, and Jim and Jane Chandler.

Tom McGinniss reported on summer activities in the works. The Fourth of July weekend will include three full days of celebration, starting with the Bethel Art Show, on Saturday and Sunday, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. During Saturday there will be family centered activities also, featuring children's games during the day, and entertainment in late afternoon for their enjoyment.

Later, an 8 p.m. skit will precede the fireworks. Sunday, the art show will continue. On Monday, the Bethel Historical Society will have its picnic and concert by the Portland Brass Quintet. These combine for three full days of events, July 2, 3, and 4. The committee will finalize these plans and review other suggested activities during the next few weeks.

Gwyneth Bohr reported that the NTL (National Training Laboratories) sessions will extend from Monday, June 6 to August 26 this summer. Because of the number of persons attending some weeks, a few workshops will use the facilities of the Sunday River Resort. Transportation to in-town events such as Sunrise Seminar will be provided.

Robin Zimcik and Bohr will again arrange for a local representative to welcome NTL delegates at their opening sessions. This year the local artisans fair at NTL will be held again. There is some possibility of holding this during more than workshop.

The Task Force commended Ken Bohr for his letters of communication with NTL and expressed hope that he will continue.

As a follow-up to the economic development discussion, a meeting will be held at the West Parish Congregational Church at 7 p.m., Wednesday, April 27, to review and discuss Greg Herrick's survey of the area. Any interested person is welcome to attend.

The next Bethel Area Task Force meeting will be held at Bingham House, Broad Street, at 7 p.m., Sunday, May 15.

CPS teacher Judy Coolidge honored work in conservation education

JUDY COOLIDGE

The Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation district has honored Crescent Park School second-grade teacher Judy Coolidge as Elementary Conservation Educator of the Year.

Coolidge has a strong interest in conservation and has been designing programs to promote conservation education for a number of years.

A highlight of her school year since 1989 has been her conservation field day, held at her farm on the Northwest Bethel Road. Each year several classes of second-graders, their teachers, and an army of parent chaperones, come to the farm and expose their students to a wide variety of environmental topics presented by local resource people.

The students divide into small groups and spend the day rotating between five to eight stations, which include presentations such as soils, forestry, aquatics, recycling presented by local foresters and the Maine Forest Service, the Soil and Water Conservation District, the local Conservation Commission and many others. In addition, there are signs and questions for the students to hunt for as they go along the paths between stations. Each year she gets excellent reviews on this program which grows each year.

In addition to this work, her second-grade class is involved in a wide range of nature-study projects and participates actively in the school-wide recycling program.

Coolidge has taught 14 years in the SAD44 school district and substitute taught for six and one-half years. She is currently involved in a pilot program of computers in her classroom. Additional activities include involvement in the school's math committee, Project Graduation, drama boosters, and Girl Scouts. She was recently inducted into an honor society for teachers. Her three daughters, Sarah (17), Jessica (15), and Victoria (12), keep her quite busy.

Coolidge comes by her interest in conservation quite naturally. She spent her youth wandering the woods near her home in Bethel. Her dad, Ernest Angevine, is quite active in conservation activities and was named Tree Farmer of Maine recently. She has also been active in the annual haying of the family fields and enjoys cross-country skiing.

HIV testing offered in Norway

Tri-County Health Services of Norway has begun a new program of HIV antibody testing and counseling. This is at a confidential site and testing is by appointment only. The cost is $35 for adults, $20 for anyone under 18 years of age.

Testing is done over the course of two visits. The first visit includes a risk assessment, and a discussion of what confidential vs. anonymous means, the window period, and safer sex guidelines. An ID number will be given to the client at that time. Test results are usually available after 10 days. Clients may call and identify themselves by their ID number. Test results are never given over the phone. Another visit will be scheduled at which the test results will be given and any questions or concerns addressed.

The Maine State Bureau of Health estimates that 1500-2500 individuals in Maine are HIV positive. The vast majority of these have not been tested and are unaware of their HIV status. For further information, please call 743-2066. TCHS is located at 57 Beal Street, Norway.

CCC REUNION

The Maine Veterans of the Civil Conservation Corps (CCC) will celebrate the 61st anniversary of the founding of the CCC, with a reunion at Cotes Land Transportation Museum, Perry Road, Bangor, on Saturday, June 18. Events will commence at 9:30 a.m.

W'STOCK YOUTH PUBLISHED IN NEW ENGLAND TEEN MAG

A poem by Becky Chandler, 15, of Woodstock was recently published in the "The 21st Century," a magazine for New England teenagers.

The magazine is a 40-page paper written entirely by teens and is distributed to New England high school English teachers.

Becky's poem was about a visit to a nursing home. She is a sophomore at Tebstar High School, and the daughter of James and Jane Chandler.

Mt. Abram lays out summer upgrades

After a successful first season in the ski business, the new owners of Mt. Abram are planning to further improve the ski area. Husband and wife, Rick and Micki Hoddinott, the area's managers and primary shareholders report skier visits up 25 percent over the previous season with some other areas of the operation experiencing even more growth. "Our ski school saw an outstanding increase in business," stated Rick Hoddinott. "We surpassed the ski school's previous years back in January and continued to do a brisk business right through closing day." Hoddinott added.

The improvement plans for the ski area are primarily in the snowmaking department, but also include at least one new expert trail.

Mt. Abram doubled its snowmaking capacity last summer. This year, plans call for the expansion of the system's coverage to include more trails as well as another significant increase in the overall capacity of the system.

"Last year we focused on making more snow on the 70 percent of the mountain where the system was already in place. Now we are looking to increase our percentage of coverage and increase our capacity to pump air and water up the slopes," explained Eric Austin, Mt. Abram's marketing director. Compressed air and water are pumped through specially designed snow guns resulting in the man-made snow that skiers depend on for consistently good conditions.

Although Mt. Abram is focusing improvements on snowmaking and new terrain, skiers will also see improvements in other areas. The cafeteria area is scheduled to be updated, and the rental shop will undergo renovations. "Normally these areas have worked well, but as we are anticipating continued growth we want to be sure that the rest of the operation can handle more traffic," said Micki Hoddinott.

Mt. Abram will be inviting the public to the area in October during the mountain's annual Winter Warm Up Weekend. At this time the ski area will spotlight the various improvements and offer pre-season discounts on season passes.

Livingston Expedition Seminar

Gould Academy's Guest Lecture Series will host Charles Haskell and Elizabeth McKnight from the New Century Conservation Trust on Thursday, May 5 at 7:30. The public is invited to attend the presentation, which will trace the Livingston Expedition, with thoughts of the environment woven throughout. There is no charge for admission. For further information contact Dr. Harry Dresser at 824-7705.

Andover planning for Olde Home Days

Planning is already underway for the 15th annual Andover Olde Home Days, to be held on Aug. 5, 6, 7.

This year's theme is "Early Occupations in Andover." This theme will be interesting for float ideas, as at one time there were several mills in the area, including a starch mill, cheese factory, grist mill, lumber mills, and dower mills -- as well as cobbler, blacksmiths and saw houses, logging and farming.

A partial list of events includes: crafts, food, games, and live entertainment. There will be fly casting, cow-chip flip, fire muster, children's games and sky divers (weather permitting). There will be a parade on Saturday, karaoke, chicken bar-b-que as well as dinner and entertainment on Friday night to start the festivities rolling.

There will be a flower show, scavenger hunt (for ages 12-18), and back by popular demand, Charlie Who (a mime artist). Ron York and Connie Jack of Remuda Farms of East Dixfield will be giving horse-drawn wagon rides during the day on Saturday. There will also be a white elephant and food sale at the Congregational Church.

Buttons will be on sale with numbers attached to the back for the lucky winter of door prizes to be drawn throughout the day on Saturday.

There will also be a car show on Saturday, sponsored by Western Maine Street Rods and Linnell Motel and Conference Center.

The Andover Library plans to have a book sale as well as a quilt, raffle. The library will also have a wedding gown display. The gowns can be of any vintage. For more information about this display, call the library during regular hours.

This is only a partial listing, and organizers say there are only a very few people on the committee at this point.

Anyone who would like to volunteer to help with this year's celebration is asked to call any of the following numbers for more information: 392-3157, 392-2131, or 392-3302.

Anyone having fund-raisers or events taking place on Olde Home Days weekend not sponsored by the committee are asked to call a committee member with information.

The Community Yard and Craft Fair will be held on June 18, rain or shine. Spaces, tables, etc., are available now. To reserve your space, call Nancy Wardwell at 392-2131 for more information.

Anderson and Clark at Just Imagine Coffeehouse

This year's final Bethel coffeehouse will be Saturday, May 7 and will feature the singer/songwriter duo of Julia Anderson and Joc Clark. Both musicians live in Bethel and have appeared throughout the fall and winter at local pubs. Anderson performed solo at the coffeehouse last year, and she and Clark have been popular drop-in talent over the past several months. Anderson's songs lean toward folk, with influences including Joni Mitchell, Tracy Chapman, and Edie Brickell, while Clark's material frequently flows reggae and Caribbean flavors.

The Just Imagine Coffeehouse is located at the West Parish Congregational Church, adjacent to Gould Academy in Bethel, and is open from 7 to 10 p.m. Children, young people, families, seniors are all comfortable in this alcohol-free, smoke-free atmosphere. Donations are requested -- $3 for adults, $1.50 for children and seniors. Drop-in talent is welcome.

OM CAR WASH, YARD SALE

The Telstar Odyssey of the Mind Team, which is raising money to participate in the World Finals in Ames, Iowa, in June, will hold a car wash and yard sale at the Bethel Car Wash on Saturday, May 14, from 9-1.

Anyone who wishes to support the team by donating yard sale items is encouraged to call 824-2653 any time, or to bring the items to the car wash on May 14.

CUB SCOUT FUN DAY

Cub Scout Pack 566 will host this year's Cub Event at the Telstar High School gym.

The day of team oriented games will be held Saturday, April 30.

Scouts need to sign up a 8 a.m. The cost for the day is $2.50 per scout.

Refreshments will be sold or scouts can pack a picnic lunch.

PTA PRESENTS "IRON WILL"

The Crescent Park School PTA will present the Disney movie "Iron Will" on Saturday, April 30 and Sunday, May 1 in the Telstar High School auditorium.

Saturday's show is at 6:30 p.m. and Sunday's matinee is 2 p.m.

Parts of the movie were filmed in Maine, and some Maine sled dogs are featured in the film.

Admission is $1 for children and $2 for adults.

OPERATIONS MANAGER

40 hours per week (flexible) / $7-$10 per hour, depending on skills

Our organization is the nationally recognized leader in medical education for remote environments. Our clients include the National Park Service, Outward Bound, the FBI, the DEA, and many universities. Classes are run year-round, all over the country by our team of 40 instructors.

We are looking for a multi-talented individual to augment our 3-person office staff. The challenge of this job is that it requires hard work every day, all day long with little downtime and little to no supervision. The advantage of working with us is that we are a fast-paced organization with great opportunities for learning, no dress code, and few rules (though we frequently have conflicts over whether to play CDs from the MET or the Rolling Stones).

Specific responsibilities include: responding to needs of clients and instructors, maintaining course files, shipping materials and paperwork to course sites, and answering phones. In addition to these secretarial tasks, the job may be tailored to the specific skills of the individual such as marketing, public relations, accounting, or sales.

Qualifications must include:

- 1) Excellent communications skills, both oral and written,
- 2) Computer skills (Macintosh experience a plus),
- 3) A passion and aptitude for learning,
- 4) An ability to handle complex, difficult tasks,
- 5) A willingness to handle low-level, mundane tasks.

Send a hand-written cover letter of 2-5 pages with a standard resume to: Wilderness Medical Associates, RFD 2 Box 890, Bryant Pond, ME 04219. NO PHONE CALLS PLEASE.

The family of Ann C. Proctor extend their many thanks. To those whom sent her flowers, gifts, cards, called on the phone, visited her either at C.M.M.C. or at her home and cooked her something. To the many areas of C.M.M.C. hospital that she needed, with "special" thanks to M-1 for giving her the best care possible and making her family comfortable. To Drs. Kappelman, E. Walworth, Chase and Thompson and their staff, we thank you. Also, thanks to United and Tri-Town for transporting her. We appreciate all the help and support everyone has shown us since her passing. Card of Thanks

Dear Folks,

It is with much sadness that I must leave my job at the Unicorn Flower Shop. I love my job, but must move on. After being a florist for over 15 years, I realize how much it fulfills me to help someone convey their thoughts through flowers. I hope I have helped some of you to do this. I will miss all of you, you're all my favorite customers. Peace to all

Love, Jill Irons

P.S. As you read this paper let us all pray for Ann's good health. Thank you.

E is for the excitement you create
M is for being so "macho"
E is for the energy you have to be a good trail boss!
R is for always wanting to race or retire
S is for your silly little half smile
O is for being "over the hill"
N is for being "nifty at fifty!"
Happy Birthday!

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words comfort and hope for your daily life.

Recently I attended a conference for "Women Over Fifty." The speakers were inspiring and thought-provoking. However, what was most moving were the stories of the women present. They were stories of death and resurrection told in this the Easter season. One woman spoke of the ground shaking under her the year of family deaths, loss of job, and marriage breakup. Yet here she was, vibrant, and obviously leading a new life. In my small group another woman with stars in her eyes spoke of the life-giving experience of belonging to a cancer patients' group. The stories described experiences of suffering and loss, but the emphasis was on the new life that came out of times of despair.

Isn't this what Easter is all about? Even in the midst of suffering and tragedy we can hope for resurrection, for new life. Our suffering is very real, but so is the possibility of new life. These are the times to remember. "For nothing will be impossible with God." (Luke 1:37) We can be comforted by Paul's words. "For I am convinced that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor rules, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor heights, nor depths, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord."
